ADVERTISEMENT.

In answer to several of our correspondents, who are desirous we should mention the new Books and Pamphlets immediately on their publication, before we have time to review them; we reply that, although such a Method may be proper with those Reviewers, who defer their Strictures on new Books for several Months together, it were needless with us, who take so early an opportunity of giving an account of the principal and interesting; especially, as in future, we mean not to be in Arrears with even the most insignificant; all which shall, if possible, be reviewed either in the current month, or in the next, after they come to our knowledge whether by public advertisement or private information.
